

An established and growing environmental consulting firm in southern California is searching for a Marine Ecologist to join our team and oversee multiple projects.

MBC Applied Environmental Sciences is looking for a motivated professional to manage existing and future projects. The company has been established for decades, and has recently seen several years of growth. The successful candidate will establish and maintain client relationships, and must have the social and communication skills to effectively communicate across different personality types. Scientific diving experience preferred, but not mandatory.

Project management will include: establishing and tracking project schedule, project budget and expenses, invoice review and approval, and the oversight of project implementation through completion. Statistical data analysis, interpretation, and scientific writing are required. Primary subject areas include: marine ecology, sediment quality, water quality, and aquatic biological resources (from invertebrates to mammals). Secondary subject areas include: hydrographic surveying, freshwater resources, and environmental assessments (e.g., CEQA/NEPA projects).

Actions required for success:

- Develop and maintain client relationships. Visit clients with peers.
- Write reports or sections of reports that are grammatically correct and scientifically sound.
- Estimate and maintain schedules and budgets for projects that are acceptable to clients and sufficient to accomplish the work.

Success Snapshot:

- Take over 3–6 ongoing projects from current staff upon hire. Understand scope and schedule within the first 30 days as determined by staff.
- Meet with clients of those projects within the first 90 days.
- Prepare proposals for two new projects within the first 90 days including narrative, cost, and schedule.
- Write reports for the 3–6 ongoing projects' activities within the first 120 days following standard company guidelines.
- Display a willingness to work hard and learn more.

Work Environment:

Professional demeanor, but casual office near John Wayne Airport.

Compensation & Benefits:

Commensurate with the level of responsibilities described. The company offers a competitive benefits package, including medical insurance, FSA, and 401(k) plan.
